

For Faculty

The Association for Business and Professional Communication (ABPC) is an international, interdisciplinary organization committed to advancing business and professional communication research, education, and practice.

For more information about joining ABPC:

Visit our website at www.businesscommunication.org or contact abcoffice@businesscommunication.org

Why Should You Join ABPC?

You have the opportunity to...

Attend business communication conferences where you can share research, participate in workshops to gain skills, and network with other faculty and professionals

Participate in regional events, and create local professional networks

Develop a relationship with a mentor, and eventually take on the role as a mentor

Win awards for published works and outstanding contribution to the development of ABPC

Subscribe to ABPC's two journals

Apply for the C.R. Anderson Research grants for business communication research funding

"ABPC has helped to strengthen my career and continue my education in business communication."

John Allen, Elon University

Check ABPC out on:

Association for Business and Professional Communication

@A4_BC